AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

A Jewett car driven by John Paradis of Berlin and Studebaker sedan driven by Alton Morrill of Auburn figured in a peculiar accident on Robinson Hill Sunday night. The Morrill car was coming toward Bethel and when meeting Paradis the cars came in contact with sufficient force to swing Morrill's car around in the opposite direction where it left the road and rolled down the bank. When the car overturned the passengers, except the driver, were thrown into the top, forcing the top from the body when the car continued to roll.

Paradis is said to have continued without stopping, and was apprehended at Groham. He was brought back to Bethel early Monday morning, and that afternoon was arraigned before Trial Justice Albert D. Park at South Paris where he pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident without making himself known. He paid a fine and costs amounting to $141.

Three ladies in Mr. Morrill's car received bruises and cuts, but it is expected that the injuries were serious.

W. C. Garey of Bethel and J. A. McKenzie of Mason, driving Hudson and Ford coupes, respectively, collided at the traffic signal at the foot of Church Street Monday afternoon. The steering apparatus and front fenders on both cars were the parts affected worst.

Mrs. McKenzie suffered a bruise on her leg.

Mrs. M. J. Marshall was struck down by a Chevrolet truck driven by Mrs. J. W. Reynolds of Sunday River, Tuesday morning. Mrs. Marshall's injuries were confined to bruises.

Sunday night a Buick sedan, said to be driven by the day hand of Auburn, left the road near Littlefield's Farm, Lockes Mills, skidding some 75 feet from the road. Some time later passengers noticed the car and upon investigation found it was the car of Auburn, was found among rocks in the ditch where it was the car through the wheel. It was brought to Bethel where it received medical attention. It had several teeth and an injured driver. The car was in good condition.

MAINE CROP PROSPECTS BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

August weather conditions were favorable to many Maine crops although in northern sections local showers have caused uneven crop growth, according to a joint report issued by the United States and Maine Departments of Agriculture.

The Maine potato crop is now forecast at 42,933,000 bushels compared with 40,493,000 bushels indicated last month, 39,380,000 bushels harvested last year and 36,994,000 bushels the 1923-1927 average, while there has been an abundance of moisture through the growing season, to September 1 this year late blight had not become very general. Aphids, however, are causing some damage to vines. Production for New England as a whole is placed at 52,234,000 bushels as compared with 48,092,000 bushels last year and 47,253,000 bushels the average for the recent five years. In most instances the drought is proving to be a boon to New England potato yields.

Commercial apples in Maine are forecast at 675,000 barrels, a decided increase over the indications of last month. It compares with 287,000 barrels last year and 538,000 barrels the five year average production. Total production this year at 3,250,000 bushels is more than twice the size of the 1928 crop and slightly above the average. As compared with last year and two years ago the indications point to higher production of all varieties except Duchesse which shows slightly smaller prospects. Baldwins are above last year's indications by 28% while McIntosh are 84% greater.

For New England commercial apples are expected to total 1,800,000 barrels compared with 1,479,000 barrels harvested last year and 1,923,000 barrels the 1923-1927 average. McIntosh apples will be more plentiful this year than last while Baldwins may be less but both will be less than two years ago. New England is expected to produce less pears this year but more pears and grapes.

Corn condition is rated at 80% in Maine and indicates a crop below that harvested last year and the average. The oat crop is placed at 4,788,000 bushels compared with 4,200,000 bushels harvested last year and 5,041,000 bushels the average 1923-1927. Wheat is reported at 91% condition, barley at 55% and buckwheat at 90%. Production of the grains is slightly higher than last year. A total of 1,552,000 tons of hay is forecast for Maine this month. This is slightly above the average crop but lower than the bumper 1928 production. For New England as a whole feed crops are expected to be better than those produced last year but to total somewhat below the average.

The United States crop situation has been considerably changed by the widespread drought which affected the whole country during August. Crop prospects declined nearly 5%. Corn prospects declined sharply and with a condition of 67.9% the September forecast is now placed at 2,455,907,000 bushels or 13% below the final production of last year. The 1929 wheat crop is given at 750,000,000 bushels or 13% less than the 1928 crop and 8% below average. Oat prospects indicate a production of 1,207,000,000 bushels or about 244 millions below last year's harvest and 140 million bushels below the average. The barley crop at 304,143,000 bushels is 52 millions below the record 1929 figure. Production of buckwheat is forecast at 12,523,000 bushels. In many sections the hay crop was harvested before the drought became severe and now a crop of 93,000,000 tons is indicated. There was an unusual decline in pasture conditions during August which placed the average at 67.1%.

Prospects for potatoes were reduced considerably during the past month and the forecast now is for a crop of 340,112,000 bushels. This compares with the record crop of 404,493,000 bushels harvested last year and 382,756,000 bushels the average. The decline was general except in New England and some far western states. Commercial apples are forecast at 2,475,000 barrels which is nearly 16% below last year's crop. Total apples are estimated at 145,523,000 bushels. The peach crop is placed at 44,374,000 bushels per crop at 20,050,000 bushels, and the grape crop at 2,032,000 tons.

USED CARS

EVERY Ford dealer has a reputation to maintain. Our name for fair dealing in selling used cars, and in servicing them, is well known. Therefore, our goal must be to uphold when we sell used cars, accepted in trade for the Model A. We could hardly afford to have it otherwise, for we realize that the person who buys a used car from us is a prospect for a new car later on—or at least another used car. You will find here many bargains in used cars, for we sell what they are actually worth. There is no inflation of used car prices to cause the excessive trade-in allowances for the low price and high value of the Model A allows no margin for unreasonable trade-in allowances.

When you buy a Model A Ford, you know it is a well-built, well-maintained, and well-serviced car. It is a car that is a good investment, and it is a car that is a good friend. Stop in today.

CHURCH ACTIVITIES

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

L. A. Edwards, Pastor
10:45 Morning Worship. Sermon by the pastor. His subject will be "Three Golden Links." Three links of a chain have a special meaning for one of our great secret orders.

The links of a chain are often employed as figures representing those qualities of mind and heart that bind this old world together; but in this discourse we shall think of the words of Paul, "All things are yours, and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's." And these three Golden Links bind this spiritual world together.

On Sunday morning at 9:30 the Church School will assemble to make plans for Rally Day, and to give out our Lesson Materials. Let us all plan to be present.

RALLY DAY will be the first Sunday in October. This will be a great day in all departments of the church. Morning Service, Church School and Communion of the Way service. Gent ready for it.

Gripping Melodrama at Lakewood This Week

"Tiger Rose," Willard Mack's celebrated melodrama of the Canadian Northwest, will be offered by The Lakewood Players this week, with Maine's own star, the talented and versatile Adelyn Bushnell, in the leading role. Miss Bushnell's appearance earlier in the season in "Dulcy," will be happily remembered by Lakewood patrons, who will regard this second appearance as another of the season's glorious events. In "Tiger Rose" she will be given an unusually wide emotional away, in a part which is replete with possibilities, and no one could play them to better advantage than Miss Bushnell.

"Tiger Rose" is a wild and tantalizing little French Canadian girl, loved by all who pass her way, and a little spoiled by her devoted guardian. Her girlhood is dominated by a romantic dream of a great love, which becomes a reality when she meets Brude, the young engineer from the States—bent upon the murder of a man who has taken away his sister, then deserted her to die in the streets. He meets Dr. Dan Cusick, Rose's friend, then deserted her to die in the streets, and confidant, and affairs take an unexpected turn, which leads to a grand dramatic climax at the deserted cabin which serves as a refuge for the hunted. Outside a wild thunder storm rages, and Michael Davlin of the Northwest Mounted Police is on the trail of the murderer. Love, duty, religion, mystery, whisky and murder all contribute to making "Tiger Rose" one of the most exciting plays of the season.

Willard Mack, the author, is one of the foremost play geniuses of the day, and his other contributions to the theatre include "The Noose," "Free Soul" and "Kick In," all of which were smash hits in New York. "The Noose" and "Free Soul" have been done at Lakewood.

"Tiger Rose" is his masterpiece and is one of the finest plays presented on the American stage. It enjoyed a two years run at the Belasco Theatre in New York City with Lenore Ulric, Pedro de Cordoba and William Courtleigh in its original cast. Mr. Courtleigh will appear at Lakewood next week in his role of Dr. Dan Cusick, which he has played for 635 times. Samuel T. Godfrey who is staging the play, will appear in the de Cordoba role. Marshall Bradford will play the part of the young engineer and Thomas Tempest will be factor of the Hudson Bay.

Maine theatregoers are going to find in "Tiger Rose" with its exceptionally fine cast one of the biggest thrills of the year.

Christie's Inn, near North Pond, Locke's Mills, was destroyed by fire last Thursday evening. The place was formerly known as Dudley Cottage and was an old land mark. The cause of the fire is unknown.
